AT CAMP HARRISON.

spondence of The Evening Star. AMP HARRISON, COLONIAL BRACE, VA., August 6, 1891. Just after supper last night companies B and ere formed and issued blank ammunition mpany D, under Capt. Webster, was sent to a field about a quarter of a mile from mp and took position. Capt. Mahany and mpany. B, were then marched to attack. bly both on the skirmish line and in line of attle, and after the fight had continued until nunition began to run short the detachats were withdrawn by mutual consent with understanding that the fight was to be rethe understanding that the fight was to be renewed at an early date, thus introducing a new feature to the art of war. Again this morning the companies were out for skirmish drill.

This time blank ammunition was issued and a steady fire was maintained. The new extended order drill has been taken up and is being drilled into the men. Great progress has been made. The trouble seems to be in preserving the intervals, the tendency being to crowd toward the pivot when wheeling. Being entirely new both to officers and men some little difficuity was encountered at the start, but now all is moving smoothly.

There was a merry party in the parlor of the otel last evening, of which Mrs. Schwartz, wife Capt. Frank Schwartz of the staff of the f Capt. Frank Schwartz of the staff of the rigade, was the promoter. A number of the rigade, was the promoter. A number of the fact that the sham battle had ather tired out the men. Mrs. Schwartz is the ead and front of everything that pertains to making the men have a pleasant time, and many pleasant evenings will they have to thank er for. Dancing was kept up until 10:30, when he boys left to report at camp. Mrs. Schwartz and the ladies have been trying to get up some oke on Ordnance Sergt. Campbell of the briade staff, but so far have not succeeded. Mrs. ochwartz has given utterance to a woman's "I schwartz has given utterance to a woman's "I vill," and Campbell stands a poor show. Camp-bell went up to town to come down with the challenge of Sentry Luce on No. 2 post at 12.30 evening. "Grand rounds," was the prompt answer of Candidate Sergt. Greenood. It was the officer of the day, Capt. Cosood. It was the officer of the day, Capt. Cosnett, indulging in his propensity for visiting osts. Being desirous of visiting his sentries fter midnight, as required by the regulations, e summoned Sergt. Greenwood, sergeant of he guard, and dispatched him to the tent of andidate Sergt. Morse, who has been detailed sinstructor in guard duties, to take him out of the first sleep that he had permitted himelf to indulge in since reaching camp. When he sergeant of the guard reported with his harge the order for grand rounds was given.

While the rounds were being formed by the while the order for grand rounds was given. While the rounds were being formed by the sergeant of the guard Capt. Costinett invited several of his brother officers to come and take tin, and a regular mob of them fell in to see the ceremony. Everything passed off smoothly and well. Too much praise cannot be given to the sentries and those in authority for the manner in which the guard duty is being done.

A high standard is maintained in this as well as all other things pertaining to camp life. Another thing that is especially noticeable is the universal good nature of the crowd. Joking is indulged in to a great extent and the only thought is to get a "rig" on your next door neighbor. The leader in all these frotics is the post adjutant, Lieut. Warren, who, however, seems to confine his attention to your correspondent. Time and again upon his re-turn to his tent has he found souvenirs of the adjutant's visits in the shape of live crabs be-tween his blankets, barber pales in front of his tent and all manner of clammy annoyances.

Nor are the boys at all backward in working. Whatever there is to be done is not put off un-

Preparations for a ball are being made, to which the officers are invited. Our co-operation will consist of Lieut. Suess for floor manager and Sergt. Morse, assistant, as usual. Mrs. Schwartz is prominent in the preparations. The enlistment of Sergt. Harlow expired to-day and he is so pleased that he re-enlisted for

THE NANJEMOY SHOOTING.

in Jail. John Marshall Rye, the old man who shot and ilmost instantly killed John J. Wheeler, a few miles from Clifton Beach, Wednesday, as published in yesterday's STAR, was arrested near Hill Top on the afternoon of the shooting. He was on his way to Port Tobacco to give himself up when he was overtaken by Constable Luttrell, who accompanied him to the county

Eye, as published in yesterday's Stan, was a carpenter about sixty years old and Wheeler was a school teacher. WHAT LED TO THE SHOOTING.

From what is said by friends of both parties, the shooting ended a bitter feeling that has existed between the two men since before the icle, and he sent word to Wheeler that he was no gentleman, or words to that effect.

Since then it appears that the incensed uncle has taken occasion to denounce the school teacher, and his denunciations were communicated to Wheeler, who thought he would call

Bowie, and when Wheeler arrived there he sens word for the old man to come out.

Rye responded and a heated discussion ensued. Wheeler was a man, so some of his friends say, who would not take an insult without resenting it, and it is therefore probable that he made some demonstration toward Rye when he (Wheeler)got out of the buggy.

took effect, one entering the left breast in the region of the heart and the other lodging in the right hip of his victim.

The dead body was put in the buggy by Rye and his nephew, who started toward the late home of the deceased, but on the road they met two friends, who relieved them of the exceedingly unpleasant task, and Rye soon afterward started for Port Tobacco.

Constable Luttrell, who was on the road, met the men who had charge of the body, and learning of the cause of Wheeler's death he returned and procured a horse, and with two citizens he started in pursuit of the man charged with the homicide. After a ride of nearly ten miles they overtook him near Hill Top on the road to Port Tobacco. He went with them willingly and said he did the shoot-

SENT DOWN FOR HER GOOD. What Judge Harper Told Charlotte Wise-

Other Cases Disposed of. Charlotte Wise appeared before the Police Court this morning on the charge of vagrancy and her plea to the charge was not guilty. Charlotte was so old that she could not tell her age. She denied that she was a vagrant, although she admitted that she was begging yesterday.

"How long have you resided here?" Judge Harper asked her. "Oh, I've lived here all my life," was her response. "I'm a old citizen."

Judge Harper said he thought that Charlotte was too old to be about the streets begging, as had been described by Policeman Caughy, and suggested that she had better go down to the alms house for a month. The old woman protested against being sent lown, as she said it was the first time she had down, as she said it was the first time she had been arrested.

"I know I was wrong today," she said, "but if your honor will let me off this time I won't do so any more."

The judge gave her thirty days on the farm and said he thought she would be put on the alms house side of the institution. He sent her down, he said, for her own good.

JOHN CARRIED A PISTOL. John Harris, a young colored man who went out in the county last night to see his best girl, was returning home about 2 o'clock this morning when Policeman Ehlers met him on H ing when rollcensar Enters have all to street.

"Hello, John," the officer said to him, and John made the usual response.

Side by side they walked along H street and presently the officer slapped John on his hip pocket and accused him of having a pistol in his pocket. John said he was guilty; that he carried it for self-protection.

Fifty dollars or ninety days was the sentence of the court and John won't get to see his best girl again for several weeks.

distribution of the court and John won't get to see his best girl again for several weeks.

Betsy Lee, a colored woman from the county, told Judge Harper that the language used by another woman was too bad to use in court.

"I guess we can stand it," said the judge, and he insisted upon it. The woman repeated some of the language, but before she had gone far the judge checked her and said, "That's enough."

"I knowed you didn't want to hear it."

The other woman was fined $5.

The other woman was fined $5. STREET WALKERS AND LOAFERS.

Policemen Smith and Espey were the officers who gave them the bad name. They told of the presence of the prisoners in Ben. Ailen's place on Virginia avenue yesterday afternoon. In the case of Maria Brown, who is also called "Big Dutch," the officers failed to make their complaint perfectly clear to the court and she was released on her personal bonds. The others were sent down for ninety days. AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE.

Mary Nuttrell came before the judge this orning for vagrancy, and Judge Harper reembered her appearance years ago when he filled the position of deputy clerk. Mary made a statement in her own behalf, but the judge knew her too well. Ninety days. John W. Shea plead guilty to a charge of dis-orderly conduct and was fined $5 or fifteen

A return party.

The officers who were present at the hotel last evening gave a little party to the girls at the hotel. Suesa, as usual, was the head and front of the affair.

Those present were Misses Barrow, Lucas, Annie and Gertrude Vermillion of Anacostia, D. C., Childs and Crump and Messrs. McGirr, Childs and Vermillion. While the party was in a slong with an umbrella and accepted an invitation to attend.

Mr. Wolcott donated a roast pig for dinner and it was brought up by Capt. Myers in a wagon. The captain was wrapped in an American flag and was loudly cheered. Capt. Mahay suggested three cheeres for the other house was call and Marzello in their grotesque work hany suggested three cheeres for the other house.

States would claim to be Christians without naming their sect.

Secretary Noble further says that he never met a man of such general knowledge and of such quick perceptions in respect to all national questions and departmental business as President Harrison, and that after a business conference with him it is not unusual for the Secretaries to say that the President has almost a superhuman skill in asking the unexpected question, meaning thereby that he has already thought of all they had and something more, which made necessary further investigamore, which made necessary further investiga-tion on their part.
